MOTOR TROUBLE HALTS ROMA'S OCEAN HOP

GIANT PLANE IS FORCED TO TURN BACK ON JUMP TO ROME

Pilot Williams Lands
Ship 20 Minutes
After Take-off.

WEATHER IS O. K.
(Coffee and Sandwiches Put in Cabin of Craft.

By James J. Delaney.
OLD ORCHARD BEACH,
Me., Sept. 19.—Twenty minutes
after the sequester plane Roma hopped off today for a non-stop flight to Rome, the giant airplane returned to the beach, having developed motor trouble.
Pilot Roger Q. Williams brought the ship back to the sand safely, landing at 12:30 p. m. (Eastern Daylight time).

The plane unexpectedly was sheeted out of her hangar at 9:30 a. m.
today and preparations were made for the hop.

The fuel was checked up and hot coffee and sandwiches were put in the cabin.

Joseph Bellanca, of Wilmington,
Del., builder of the trans-Atlantic airship, arrived on the beach and gave the plane a final inspection.

The backfire of the Florida hurricane which had brought crosswinds
and rain had swept seaward.

Favorable weather reports came from ships at sea.

The trans-Atlantic crew of four busied themselves about the plane.

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review.)

MONDAY Mr. Hoover from California was telling the east why it should vote to retain and increase Republican prosperity.

Gov. Smith from New York was on his way west to tell farmers why they should put out Republicans and put Democrats in.

MANY speeches about prohibition,
nullification, as Republicans call it,
modification, as Democrats call it.

Much whispering and loud talking about religion.

But the real issue is PROSPERITY.
Once women talked about the full dinner pail. Now they talk about the full pocketbook.

The job of Democrats is to convince the public that the national pocketbook will expand, and national savings increase more rapidly under Democratic than under Republican rule. Nothing else really counts.

A LADY bandit adds annoying features to the holdup industry.

Twelve gentlemen were playing poker in Brooklyn, a policeman among them. Violent sobbing at the door, a woman in distress. The poker players open, and hear "stick 'em up"—two men pointing automatics stand behind the sobbing young lady. She points one automatic, pointed steadily, while her friends collect pocketbooks and jewelry, $5,000 in cash.

Then to facilitate the "get-away"
the young lady of the sobs and automatic told the twelve gamblers, "drop your trousers to your knees." They obeyed hastily. Leaving them bobbed, any man can appreciate their predicament. Lady and holdup partners left in their automobile. That is new.

IF YOU have made any winter plans about Florida, don't let any news reports, accurate or exaggerated, influence you. There are no tornadoes in Florida in winter.

A TYPHOON in China has killed
many, and many houses destroyed.
We pay little attention; it is too far away. In the Virgin Islands thousands are homeless. That is nearer home but leaves us cold. A majority of us don't know where the Virgin Islands are.

LISBON PASTOR

LISBON CHURCH CALLS PASTOR FOR THIRD YEAR

Rev. C. N. Church Returns to Methodist Charge.

SON OF FARMER
Served as "Junior Preacher," Then District Head.

LISBON, O., Sept. 19.—The Rev.
Charles N. Church, once a "junior preacher" at an annual salary of $375
and later superintendent of the Barnesville district of the North-East Ohio conference, will be returned to the pastorate of the First Methodist Episcopal church here by the Lorain conference, it was announced today.

The Rev. Mr. Church, for two years pastor here, was born on a farm near Geneva, Ashtabula county. In early life the family moved to Akron, where he passed through the public schools, graduating from the high school, and entered Buchtel college, which is now
the University of Akron, and graduated with the B. A. degree.

After graduating from college he entered the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal church. His first appointment was as "junior preacher" of the Adamsville circuit, near Zanesville, a double circuit of seven churches. He was the only "junior preacher" that year in the old East
Ohio conference.

Graduated from Drew Seminary.
After preaching another year as pastor of a two-point work at Hampden and Montville, Georgia county, he went east to attend Drew Theological seminary, Madison, N. J. He graduated in a class with such men as Bishops
John Nuelson, Herbert Welch and George Bickley.

After graduating at Drew, he continued there for a year in post graduate study in church history under Dr. George R. Crooks. During this year he married Miss Nellie Hausman of Akron. Their first year was in Chatham, N. J., near Drew seminary, where he was acting as pastor of Stanley Congregational church. Then they returned to Ohio where they have spent the remainder of their ministerial life in The North-East Ohio conference.

Pastoral appointments.
His pastoral appointments since returning have been Bedford, Cleveland Canton, Alliance, Cambridge, then as superintendent in the Barnesville district, again as pastor in Ashtabula, Urichsville and Lisbon.

He received from Drew seminary
the degree of bachelor of divinity, and from Mount Union college the honorary degree of doctor of divinity.

GIRL "HIKER" WILL RETURN TO AKRON IN MURDER QUIZ

Loveda Boyle, 18, Oil
City, Pa., Admits
Shooting.

AWAITS TRIAL
Charged With Killing
Ohio Automobile
Salesman.

AKRON, O., Sept. 19.—Loveda
Boyle, 18, the red haired girl "hitchhiker" who has admitted that she shot
and fatally wounded Robert McCormick, 31, Akron automobile salesman, last Friday, will return here voluntarily for a second degree murder trial.

Prosecutor Oscar Hunsicker said today that attorneys for the girl, who is at her home in Oil City, Pa., had notified him that they would not resist extradition and that Miss Boyle would come here immediately and surrender to police.

After obtaining a divorce from her husband in Oklahoma, the young woman started to "hitch-hike" back to her home in Oil City. Early Friday morning she was picked up near the city limits here in an automobile occupied by A. J. Ritchie, local merchant, and McCormick.

Story of shooting.
Ritchie was driving and the girl sat between the two. They had driven a short distance when McCormick began to make improper advances, according to the young woman's story.
She warned him, she said, that she carried a revolver and would shoot if he did not cease molesting her.

"All right, I'll call your bluff," Mc-Cormick is reported to have answered.
Ritchie says the two struggled, he heard a shot, stopped the car, and ordered the girl to get out. He then brought McCormick to the hospital here where he died, with a bullet wound in his abdomen, Saturday.

Second Degree Murder Charged.
Miss Boyle said she had intended to shoot McCormick in the leg, and did not think she had hurt him seriously. On learning that he was dead
she immediately admitted the shooting from her home in Oil City. Though given "lifts" by more than a dozen men during her trip from Oklahoma, this was the only instance in which she was seriously molested, she related.

Miss Greta Footman, Summit county probation officer, obtained a requisition for Miss Boyle's return from Governor Donahoe at Columbus this morning. She will go to Harrisburg, Pa., Detective Chief Edward McDonnell is to go to Oil City to make certain that Miss Boyle carries out her promise to return here.

On arriving in Akron the young woman will be arraigned in municipal court on the second degree murder charge which stands against her, and will be held for trial later.

Storm Wrecks Truck Farming Town of 500

Hurricane Sweeps Village Houses and Other Buildings Out of Its Path Through Belle Glade Oasis in Desert of Everglades.

By CARTER BROOKE JONES.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Sept. 19.—It was a little truck farming town called Belle Glade—a village of 500, an oasis in the desert of the everglades toward Palm Beach, 50 miles to the west stretched prosperous farms, for the damp, black soil of the everglade is fertile.

The hurricane struck Sunday night. It swept the village houses and the farm buildings out of its path.

West Palm Beach and the other coastal towns had suffered in like measure but an added horror was reserved for this truck farming region. In the wake of the mowing winds came walls of water, compounded of the lashed Atlantic tide and the driven water of Lake Okeechobee.

Surging Inland Sea.
The dreary waters of the Everglades became a surging inland sea. The flood sucked hungrily at the houses of Belle Glade and the adjacent farms.

It added its choking horror to that other emissary of ruin, the wind. Water rose in the crumbling houses. Men clutched their women and children, only to have them torn away. Nightfall came—a black chaos.

Today Belle Glade was quiet, cross-less. Soldiers stood guard. Red Cross men and volunteer workers from the American Legion busied themselves at assigned tasks without confusion.
The sun struggled out of pale clouds.

Place of Desolation.
Peace had replaced wild confusion, screams, terror, futile struggles. But it was the peace of desolation. The calm of a weedy patch that once was a garden.

The houses seemed to have been deserted long ago. It seemed impossible that they could have been lived in recently. They were toppled over or leaned forward as decayed houses do.

The gaping holes in them might have been the slow work of time.

The nearby farms looked like relics of some half forgotten epoch. No one smiled, but then no one wept or complained.

Two trucks struggled over the flooded highway from West Palm Beach.
They turned through the muck that the monstrous wind had dredged out of the Everglades and deposited over the road. They unloaded bread, milk, meat.

Over in a corner of the ruined village other men were hammering and sawing. They were putting together crude little boxes. Made of whatever boards they could find. Other men were out in boats on the canal, with its unnatural expanse. Now and then they returned with limp forms.

al matters.

PROPERTY LOSS ESTIMATED AT $30,000,000 BY RED CROSS

Howling Gale Rips
Through Virginia on Way to Sea.

SHIPPING HIT

Portions of North and South Carolina are Isolated.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—The storm's toll in Palm Beach county, Florida, today was 400 dead, 15,000 homeless, 8,000 without change of clothing and $30,000,000 property damage, according to a telegram to the Red Cross from H. W. Selby, chairman of the Palm Beach
chapter, and James H. Gilman, chairman of the relief committee
at Miami.

Communication Lines Crippled.
Food and water conditions are satisfactory, but the western half of the county faces "serious sanitary conditions," the message said.

Damage Estimates High.
MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 19.—Three hundred and fifty seemed today a conservative estimate of the dead in the hurricane that swept across Florida Sunday, in opinion of relief workers.

Damage to a score of towns may run above $100,000,000.

The flooded districts along the shores of Lake Okeechobee yielded the highest toll.

At 7:00 o'clock the number of dead was placed at 250 by military and Red Cross officials.

At Belle Glade, 1 mile west of Palm Beach, 125 of whom are Negroes, according to a radio message intercepted here by amateur receiving station 4KV, operated by J. W. Sprat-ling.

The message was addressed to Mayor John T. Alsop of Jacksonville, urging immediate help, and was signed by J. W. Lamb, probably connected with some relief organization there.

Lamb asked for 5,000 cots, 4,000
blankets, 1,000 pillows, two carloads of roofing paper, 500 gallons of milk,
lanterns, candles, and groceries.

Approximately 5,000 were homeless,
most of them being Negroes, the message said.

NORFOLK, Va., Sept. 19.—A howling gale, the last of the destructive West Indian hurricane, ripped through this section today on its way to the sea.

Communication lines were badly crippled. Shipping was paralyzed in the harbor. Portions of the water front section of the city were flooded.

J. H. Wright was killed when the wind blew him directly in the path of an oncoming trolley car.

The wind velocity off Cape Henry and Cape Hatteras was variously estimated at from 63 to 75 miles an hour.

CHILLY RAIN HITS NEW YORK

East Gets Tail End of Southern Hurricane.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Strong wind and a chilly rain crawled up the North Atlantic coast today, giving
New York and other cities a touch of the tail end of the southern hurricane.

A 70-mile gale was reported heading this way. Long Island, lying exposed to the sweep of the gale, set itself to meet it.

The weather bureau issued a storm warning, extending from Cape Hatteras, N. C., to Eastport, Maine.

"The storm is central between Ras-leigh and Cape Hatteras, and moving northward or possibly north northeastward," the warning said.

"Northeast winds will likely increase to whole gale force this afternoon and tonight. Continue northeast storm warning north of Provincetown to Boston and hoist northeast storm warning north of Boston to Eastport, Maine."

FLORIDA CITRUS FRUIT HARD HIT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Florida's citrus fruit crop suffered a loss of approximately $4,000,000 in the hurricane, the agricultural department estimated today.

The crop was reduced by about 2,000,000 boxes, worth $2 a box on the trees.

TOWNSHIP LINE REUNION SEPT. 29

Fifth annual reunion of the Township line school, Youngstown-East Liverpool road, will be held at the school on Saturday, September 29.

Former pupils, teachers, patrons and friends of the school have been invited to attend. A basket dinner will be served at noon. Mrs. Maurice Chamberlain is secretary-treasurer of the association.

BURGLARS GET $60, ALCOHOL

Break Into W. & W.
Drug Store in Washington Street.

Burglars, who broke into the W. & W. pharmacy, Washington street, last night, obtained $50 in cash and a small quantity of alcohol, according to a report made to the police this morning.

Entrance was made through a small transom window leading into the basement from the Washington street side. The money was secreted in a bag in a desk in the store. Chief of Police McDermott investigated.

The O. K. restaurant, in Mulberry street, was entered Monday night and about $3 taken from the cash register. Entrance was made through a rear window. Patrolmen Curran and Richards investigated.

Cooper Pledges Ohio River Road Building

Republican Gubernatorial Nominee Shares Speaking Honors With State Highway Director Kirk and Others at Opening of "Narrows."

WELLSVILLE, O., Sept. 19.—Myers Y. Cooper, Cincinnati, Republican gubernatorial nominee, pledged legislation leading to the permanent improvement of the Ohio river road between Toronto and Wellsville, if elected, at the formal opening of the "Narrows" yesterday afternoon.

Cooper, who shared speaking honors with Harry J. Kirk, state highway director; Robert Beightler, chief engineer, and Roy J. Burke, grade separation engineer of the state highway department, promised to make the river highway one of the finest in the state.

Burke discussed the grade separation work for the new road at Yellow Creek where the highway crosses both railroad and street car tracks. Beightler talked on the building of roads, while Kirk played the final completion of the road before the end of the 1929 road building season.

700 Attend Ceremonies.

More than 700 persons including delegations from East Liverpool, Wellsville, Steubenville, Toronto and other places, attended the formal opening of the four-mile stretch of road between the McCulloch-Jefferson County children's home and Stratton, Forest Richmond, Toronto publisher and Good Roads Federation director, introduced State Senator Harry Carpenter, Steubenville, who was chairman.

Mrs. Florence Spaulding, Steubenville, Ohio's only woman county commissioner, cut the white ribbon forming a barrier for the road which was held by E. M. Diehl and Frank Thomas, secretaries of the Columbiana County Motor and the Steubenville Automobile clubs, respectively. The ribbon was cut in small pieces and distributed as souvenirs.

A parade, formed at Toronto, preceded the ceremonies. Delegations from East Liverpool and Wellsville joined the procession in the Wellsville public square.

Luncheon in Toronto.

A complimentary luncheon, held in the First Methodist Protestant church in Toronto at noon, was attended by 175 persons. Richmond presided, while Mayor E. R. Geisley, Toronto, delivered the address of welcome. The speakers were James R. Alexander of the board of governor of the Ohio Good Roads Federation, and State Senator Earl Lewis, St. Clairsville.

Visitors inspected the Pennsylvania-Ontario electric plant and the Tollans-See Brothers' Force plant at Toronto following the opening of the road.

Kirk addressed members of the Toronto Kiwanis club at a dinner meeting last night, during which he announced that he had signed the order eliminating the Trenton street crossing in Toronto. This crossing, which is a part of High Route No. 7, will be eliminated by the railroad company, state and village next year.

PERSONALS

Dr. and Mrs. Dudley H. Beaumont, Dr. Frank Beaumont, Mr. and Mrs. Byron McLaughlin and Miss Maxine Herron will attend the performance of "Rio Rita" in Pittsburgh tonight.

Miss Katherine Gregory, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Gregory, Broadway, has resumed her studies in Marietta college after spending the summer vacation at her home in Wellsville.

Miss Virginia Lowther of Riverside avenue left today for Lewisburg, W. Va., where she will teach in the Greenbrier College for Women.

COUNCIL ASKS POLICE REPORT

Mayor's Veto of Vacation Plan Overridden.

Resolution requiring the chief of police to make a monthly report of the activities of members of his department was unanimously passed last night by council over the veto of Mayor W. L. Fogo. Action on the measure was taken after Solicitor Raymond Knepper rendered an opinion that council was within its rights in demanding such a report.

An ordinance providing a 15-day vacation for policemen and one day off each week, vetoed by Mayor Fogo, was enacted after it had been changed to allow officers a 10-day vacation and one day off each month. The vote was unanimous.

Resolution was passed under suspension of the rules increasing the pay of water works clerk from $75 to $87.50 a month. The clerk also receives $12.50 a month from the cemetery fund, making the total monthly salary $100. Motion by Haugh that action be deferred until the next meeting was defeated by a vote of 6 to 1.

Mayor Fogo called attention to what he termed the poor condition of the railroad crossings and the clerk was directed to notify company officials to repair them before advent of bad weather.

Resolution providing for a vote on an $18,000 bond issue for sewerage Seventeenth street was certified to the Columbiana county board of deputy state supervisors of elections. The proposal will be on the ballot at the November 6 election.

Discussion took place on the condition of the detour road at the Well avenue bridge in which Service Director George B. Imbrie declared that he was unable to place the highway in good condition owing to lack of funds.

City Auditor Fred H. Eckfeld submitted the following financial report showing balances in the various funds: General, $1085.97; service, $265.42; safety, $1291.42; health, $198.18; gas tax, $1209.36; auto licenses, $1561.93; fire indemnity, $350.06; water, $9379.56; special sewers, $2542.85; cemetery, $726.36; special water, $2752.43; library, $538.41; streets sewers, $37.31; sinking fund, $14,536.70.

PENNSY TRACK MEET SATURDAY

Railroad Employees Enter Altoona Tournament.

Wellsville people will attend the eighth annual outdoor track and field meet of employees of the Pennsylvania Railroad company at Altoona next Saturday.

More than 900 men and women athletes, survivors of the elimination contests held during the summer in the three operating regions, the Altoona works and the general offices in Philadelphia will compete for the system championships. In addition to track and field events the program will include tennis, trap shooting, rifle shooting, quoits, horseshoes, golf, swimming and baseball.

Trials in the track and field events will be held on the Altoona cricket field in the forenoon, the finals being arranged for 1 p. m. Wilbur Saylor, manager of the track team at the Pennsylvania state college, will referee the track events, while Nate Cartmell, track coach of Penn State, will be the starter. Lynn Hutchinson, Tyrone, Pa., will be field judge.

The first of the three games to determine the baseball champions of the Pennsylvania railroad will be started at 3:30 p. m. when the Pittsford shop team of the western lines, and the Philadelphia terminal division team which recently won the championship of the eastern lines for the eighth consecutive year, will meet.

More than 30,000 persons, chiefly employees and officers of the Pennsylvania railroad and representatives of other railroads are expected to attend.

Traveling Commissioner Robert Hoggard, Salvation Army Worker, Speaks Tonight

Son of British Coast Vessel Skipper Will Make Address in First Methodist Episcopal Church.

Traveling Commissioner Robert Hoggard and wife, Salvation Army workers for nearly half a century, will speak at a missionary rally which will be held in the First Methodist Episcopal church, Fifth and Jackson streets, at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night.

Visiting delegation of Salvation Army members from Youngstown, Warren, Salem, Canton, Alliance and Steubenville are expected to attend. Commissioner Hoggard is a native of Beverly, a small village on the east coast of Yorkshire, England. His father was the skipper of a small coastal vessel, and he himself had been designed for the same career. In fact he had sailed his first voyage as the captain of a ship of his own when the call came.

Filled Posts in England. He had been standing among the crowd around a Salvation Army open-air meeting when he was suddenly possessed of a feeling which he could not understand.

"I suppose the earnestness of the officer's appeal for the Master and the mystical beauty of the little service in the open touched the Celtic stream in me. Anyhow, my surrender was complete," said the commissioner. After being for a time in Lincolnshire he went to Bristol circus, at that time one of the most important corps of the army. Afterwards he was at Portsmouth and Plymouth. The spirit of evangelical revival was then working with mighty power, and not only in this country, but from many other parts of the world.

Wife is Army Officer. The Army was not popular with the majority of the people then. Officers were subjected to cruel persecution almost in every city and town in the land.

In 1886 Commissioner Hoggard was married. Mrs. Hoggard before her marriage was Captain Annie Johns and was one of the outstanding officers at that time. She had commanded some of the largest corps in the country, including the famous Grecian theatre in the City road, London. Before it was acquired by General Booth, the Grecian was one of the most notorious night haunts in or about London.

The first corps the newly married couple were sent to was Bristol circus. Thus, as it happened, Bristol circus was the first corps the commissioner commanded as a single man, and the first as a married man.

Served in South of Ireland. It is indicative of the reputation Mr. and Mrs. Hoggard enjoyed in the Army, and the esteem in which they were held by its leaders, that their next appointment should be the renowned Congress hall at Clapton, which has so many sacred and tender memories for Salvation Army officers. Following this was a period at Sheffield during which an outbreak of smallpox occurred, and the corps was badly hit.

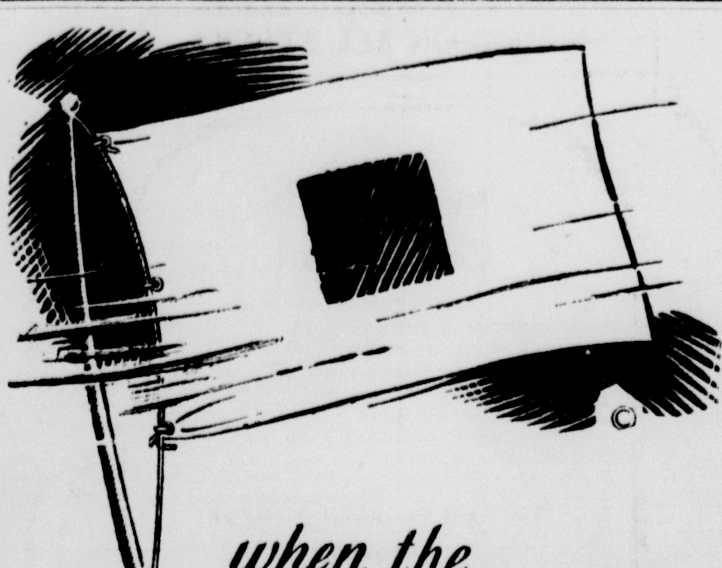

As a provincial officer, Commissioner Hoggard was sent by the general to open up the south of Ireland. The Army had been established for 20 years in the north of Ireland, but nothing hitherto had been done in the south, and Mr. and Mrs. Hoggard as pioneers in the south, had an exciting time. They began at Cork and afterwards opened corps at Waterford, Limerick, and Dublin.

There was more work for the Hoggards in England, and then in 1908 they were dispatched to open up the army in Korea.

On their return from Korea, Commissioner and Mrs. Hoggard were in charge of the work in Scotland for a time, and afterwards in South Africa. Following that they spent four happy years in New Zealand. Commissioner Hoggard has been an officer in the army for 48 years and Mrs. Hoggard for 47 years.

Winning public preference because of greater dollar value

With the arrival of the new Chrysler-built Plymouth the search for greater dollar value in the lowest-priced field is made surprisingly simple.

It is so unmistakably in a class by itself—with its full size, its new and original style, its fine quality of finish and fittings.

But the contrast in Plymouth's favor becomes still more startling in the matter of performance—in its speed, pick-up and power, from its new "Silver-Dome" high-compression engine using any gasoline; its smoothness and roadability; its safety because of light action internal-expanding hydraulic 4-wheel brakes.

The buyer who seeks dollar-value first will inevitably choose the new Plymouth, after observing the very significant contrasts in greater dollar-for-dollar value it presents to every other car in the lowest-priced field.

SCIENCE Adds a Welcome New VALUE TO ARMSTRONG FLOORS

Accolac finish—beauty-giving, labor-saving features NEW patterns now on display

FORGET that floors ever lacked color and interest. Forget, too, that it was ever a task to KEEP floors presentable. Display of the new Armstrong's Linoleum with an added feature—a lacquer finish known as Accolac.

This Accolac finish—a scientific help in caring for your floors—gives to Armstrong patterns the aristocratic, well-cared-for glow of hand-ubbed furniture. More, Accolac forms a tough, durable protection over the beauty of the Linoleum. And—what is still more—Accolac stops the dirt.

Dust now gets no deeper than the surface; swept away at the first stroke of brush or mop.

Waxing, too, is less troublesome. Over Accolac, wax spreads evenly; polishes quickly.

Thus, not only have Armstrong's designers created new and strikingly beautiful floor effects, but science has come out of the laboratory to KEEP them beautiful.

"ARABESQ . . . that's something NEW, isn't it?"

Arabesq—Armstrong's different floor is indeed new, Madam. Charming designs so cleverly applied over a rich inlaid marble base that the linoleum itself becomes a part of the pretty pattern.

Fewer things newer in floors. Fewer things prettier. And certainly, fewer things less expensive. Arabesq? Yes, indeed!

EMBOSSED INLAID . . . the floor of MAGIC texture

Fine old ashlar stone painstakingly laid by master craftsmen, even to the mortar lines pressed below the surface—so this floor seems at first glance. But there is a subtle texture, and a softness underfoot that no stone floor ever boasted. Because this pattern actually is embossed, there is a constant—almost magic—play of light and shadow which makes the whole surface sparkle. And there's Accolac to preserve this beauty.

Delaying Smith Street Job

City council's action in voting to delay the improvement of Smith street, connecting link between Dresden and Lincoln avenues, and recognized as a necessary outlet for the additional traffic that is inevitable when the Youngstown-East Liverpool road is completed, puzzles citizens.

Without any explanation, the lawmakers, at Tuesday night's meeting, tabled two resolutions providing for work on the link. One measure called for the improvement between the two avenues, while the second authorized merely a Green Lane-Dresden avenue job. And upon roll call, councilmen voted to "table" both proposals.

Unless there is a change of front on the part of the municipal legislators, Smith street will not be opened this fall, notwithstanding the investment of $2,800 of the taxpayers' money in the acquisition of two pieces of property which were required for the proposed program. And in the interim the new inter-city highway will be opened, thus pouring more automobiles, motor trucks and other vehicles into the Diamond, already congested under ordinary conditions.

If East Liverpool is to prevent tieups at the intersection of Dresden avenue, Sixth street and the Diamond, steps should be taken to divert traffic onto Broadway, a wider thoroughfare. And Smith street offers a solution to the problem.

Unless there is a valid excuse for the delay, council should proceed with the Smith street legislation. Otherwise, the legislators' action should be explained.

Mexico on Upgrade

A "new era" they call it—the present state of affairs in Mexico, and certainly it is that beyond the Rio Grande where a president who could easily have constitutional limitations set aside and himself continued in office declares for their maintenance. What is more, the army, at least the leaders, concur in his decision.

There may be some cause for comment upon Calles' decision that it is time for Mexico to "make a decided and final effort to pass from the category of a people and government of a dictator to the higher, more dignified, more useful and more civilized condition of a nation of institutions and laws." Few indeed of the past presidents of Mexico have thought such a course desirable.

Whether Calles' successor will take so magnanimous a position remains to be seen. The thirst for power is hard to slake. With all too many leaders among our Latin neighbors it grows with its possession. Calles may well say: "I consider it necessary to pass from a system of government by one man to a government of institutions." But the next to hold the reins may think otherwise. We find both hope and fear in his statement that it is his remotest intention to abandon civic duties and retire from the life of struggle and responsibility which, he says, is the lot of every soldier.

Hope rests in his ability as a respected citizen to help carry on the plan suggested. Perhaps Mexico needs a benevolent dictator to keep her ship of state on an even keel until the forces of enlightenment get more strongly entrenched. Mexico is certainly on the upgrade.

As Maine Goes

As long as the memory of man runneth not to the contrary there has been a political gesture which bases the result of a presidential campaign on the outcome of the gubernatorial and senatorial election in Maine, which occurs approximately two months prior to the November balloting.

If there is any truth at all in the saying that "as Maine goes, so goes the nation," then it is all over but the shouting, insofar as the cause of Mr. Hoover and Mr. Curtis is concerned. The Republicans won in Maine by a majority of two to one, the customary Republican majority, as far as Maine is concerned.

Study of the voting in Maine and the results discloses that outcome was just about as expected. Nothing out of the ordinary transpired. There were no political upheavals or upsets. The regular Republicans won handsily over their Democratic opponents. In fact, there is so little in the results in Maine upon which to base any sort of a guess as to the outcome elsewhere that such a guess would of necessity have to be purely hokum.

But for those politicians who still cling, in this modern era, to the threadbare traditions of the past, perhaps there is a grain of comfort in the knowledge that Maine is again solidly in the Republican column—and that "as Maine goes, so goes the nation."

Bees' Language

American bee experts are trying to determine the language of bees. It is a difficult and fascinating subject.

There can be no doubt, from ordinary observation of bees' activities, that they communicate with each other in some way. Maeterlinck, in his "Life of the Bee," suggests that they do it possibly with their antennae, as ants appear to.

An American specialist recently gave it as his belief that the bees have a dance language—they convey ideas to each other by executing various dancing patterns with their feet. Something of the sort seems to occur when a bee returns to the hive with good or bad news of any kind.

Others suggest that there are really three modes of communication among the bees, operating by sound, sight and smell. One of the most interesting possibilities is that, if they have voices and use them, at a pitch now inaudible to human ears, we may eventually come to hear and understand them by means of the microphone.

In any event, there are none of God's creatures outside of man more worth studying than these same wonderful bees, with their highly organized community life and their successful solution of some social and political problems regarding which man is experimenting.

"The world is too much with us. Late and soon, Getting and spending, we lay waste our powers." And Wordsworth, nearly 100 years ago, thought he knew what he was writing about.

HASKIN DAILY LETTER

By Frederick J. Haskin

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 19.—While the skyscraper type of building now is to be found in all principal countries of the world, it remains a typically American form of construction, especially where steel is used. There are tall edifices of brick and stone and the Eiffel Tower at Paris is a colossal structure but, in general, it may be said that the steel skyscraper is America's own. Each year sees improvements and additional adornments and uses.

These innovations have all originated in the United States. The newest one is the church skyscraper and the experience of only the last two or three years indicates that downtown churches of the future will be of the skyscraper type.

The first church to adopt such a mode of construction was the First Methodist Episcopal church of Chicago which, in 1922, erected the Chicago temple. This building is 21 stories high and atop this there is a steeple which rises to a total height from the ground of 568 feet. This is 12-1/2 feet higher than the Washington Monument.

The church proper is on the first floor, the upper floors being rented as offices. The income of $800,000 a year makes this perhaps the richest church in the west. The church was founded in 1831, the first services having been held at the cottage of a blacksmith. The congregation now number 1800.

The first church of this type built in the east was erected at Syracuse, N. Y. This is the Mizpah temple, a Baptist organization. All of the upper space is used as an hotel.

New York City's first church skyscraper is the Chelsea Presbyterian church. It stands not far from the famous Flatiron building and rises 17 stories high. The basement is occupied for church activities, there being Sunday school rooms, a gymnasium, shower baths, and kitchen. On the main floor there are two principal entrances. One leads into the church proper, designed in a restrained Gothic style of architecture, while the other gives access to a hotel lobby. On the second floor are the offices of the pastor of the church and the offices necessary to conduct the church property. The remainder of the edifice is employed as a residential hotel with both furnished and unfurnished suits for rent.

The story of this venture is of especial interest. A short time ago this organization, like so many churches, found itself in financial difficulties. Instead of attempting the old style method of giving a succession of strawberry festivals, church suppers, amateur entertainments, and starting a mortgage-raising drive for contributions, the church staked everything on one throw and, obtaining financial backing, erected the skyscraper. Its income at present goes to the mortgage but when it is paid off the income will pour into the church coffers. Its rent, heat, and maintenance free. "The hotel has an 84 year lease on its ground floor lobby, dining and lounge rooms, and the upper stories."

The Fifth Church of Christ Scientist is the only other skyscraper church in New York City. Its building stands near the Grand Central Terminal in the business section of up-town New York. In this case an arrangement was made with a building company to go into the deal, the church taking a 99 year lease on the building. Excepting for the church quarters, the edifice is given over to offices which, in this district, bring a high rental.

Other church skyscrapers will soon be added to the now existing in the metropolis. The Broadway temple, located far up-town at 173rd street, is under construction. It is expected to be the most pretentious of all so far, costing $5,500,000. This project was financed by the sale of bonds, John D. Rockefeller having purchased $250,000 worth, commending the project.

The Second Presbyterian church is building an apartment hotel church at Central Park West and 95th street and the Manhattan Congregational church another at 76th and Broadway. At Broadway and 57th street the church of the Stranger is erecting a 16 story structure which, besides its own space, will have stores and apartments. The famous Dr. Fossdick is planning a skyscraper on Riverside Drive opposite Grant's tomb and the Rev. John Roach Straton, equally famous, is arranging for a skyscraper for his Calvary Baptist church on West 57th street. The John Street Methodist church has announced that it about to build a great structure on its John street site, in the heart of a busy district downtown.

The towers of Oxford and those of other noted institutions of learning have long been famous but it has remained for the University of Pittsburgh to employ steel skyscraper in a practical way for education purposes. This projected venture, financed largely by gifts from the Mellon family, will tower higher than the Washington monument.

Q. Which of our presidents was the greatest baseball enthusiast? S. N. E.

A. This is a matter of opinion. All of the presidents of this century have enjoyed baseball games. Of the presidents preceding them, Garfield perhaps was particularly known because of his interest in the game. Games were held on the White House grounds and the Marine band played for them.

Q. What were some of the names suggested for the vehicle that is called the automobile? C. C. E.

A. Originally it was known as the horseless carriage. Up to 1899 a number of names were proposed and rejected for the new invention. Some of them were as follows: carleek, electromobile, gasmobile, auto carriage, autovic, locomotive, cabine, victorine ipomotor, sineque, autogo, kineter and autakineter.

Q. Are accidental falls the cause of a great number of deaths? P. E.

A. In 1926 there were 14,681 deaths due to accidental falls in the registration area in continental United States.

Q. How much blood does the heart pump in a given time? W. V.

A. It is only recently that physicians have finally succeeded in measuring the output of the human heart. Experiments show that the heart pumps 5-1/2 quarts through the human body every minute.

NEW YORK Day By Day

By O. O. McIntyre.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 19.—San Francisco's Chinatown is a perfect past of the Orient imprisoned in a western frame—vivid with myriad hues of exotic colorings. New York's Chinatown is vastly interesting but in comparison seems incomplete. Here is the finished product.

Strips of San Francisco's Chinese quarter, they say, could be easily transplanted to Canton and Hongkong and be unnoticed. This afternoon I saw Chinese children marching home from school and they resembled for all the world those dainty roly-poly bisque Chinese dolls even to their bamboo and paper parasols.

The overtone of Chinese has been distinct since gold rush days when they washed, cooked and wore playfully hung by the pioneers. They give the city much of its cosmopolitan flair. The spidery streets are aflame with nuances of color—gold leafed pagodas with "devil spike" points, lantern hung porches and brilliant screens.

Grant Avenue, sweeping upward, is the main artery. Shops and bazaars are flung along it with dazzling windows revealing porcelains, bronzes, ivories and silks. Pajamas, house robes, kimonos and such are also dazzling and beguiling with their fantastic splashes of every shade.

Jewelry shops are magnets of attraction. Here the humped over artisans with delicate sensitive fingers work on benches in windows in plain view of passersby, performing miracles of craftsmanship in gold filigree and in jade. Huge bifocal lenses indicate their dimming sight and eventuality blindness.

There are no longer subterranean passages honeycombed with exotic opium den parlors nor do white girls hunker their souls into slavery for poppy dreams. Guides are plentiful but one may growl in perfect safety. Many are San Francisco born and their English is without the slightest accent.

Chinatown telephone girls are Chinese—flapper types with bobbed hair and a pleasant "All right." On the sidewalks are peripatetic cobblers who drive pegs while you wait, apothecaries with roots and herbs, fly and bird vendors and fish stalls. And a toothless old fellow I followed around offering a huge sum—well, $2—to show me the nearest vanishing coin trick I ever saw. He only cackled.

YOUR HEALTH

An Ounce of Prevention Is Worth A Pound of Cure.

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland.

Why do people get cross? If you were a preacher what advice would you give your congregation on this subject? Would you recommend anything besides prayer and Bible study?

It is my feeling, sometimes, that all of us preachers are apt to forget the place of the human body in the scheme of salvation. "The body is the temple of the soul," we are told. Just what does this mean?

You wouldn't think much of a farmer who let his barn roof get leaky. The rain comes through and rots the hay. This essential feed for the horses gets musty or sour. It loses its value as food.

What would you say about a jeweler who left a big hole in his show window? Through it he would lose his stock of valuables.

A diseased and broken body will result in damage to the soul residing in it. By God's grace the dwarfed and undeveloped spirit of the man may rise on wings of usefulness and give service in spite of the handicap of a body's neglect. But who can doubt that had the temple of the body been kept in perfect order the soul and spirit dwelling therein would have come in richer fruition?

This may sound like "high-brow" stuff, but I believe it just the same. I think preachers should tell their congregations that God does not smile on wilful neglect of the body. In my opinion, the time will surely come when men and women will be ashamed to admit that they are ill. Too many sicknesses are the absolute fault of the victims. Why should we neglect to preach this fact?

You say I do not seek to avoid my own responsibility. Let no preacher get mad at me because I am talking this way. I, too, am a preacher. Every body who preaches to an audience through any medium is a preacher and he is not true to his trust unless he urges right living, right eating, right thinking.

The truth shall set men free and

Other Editors Say

A Traffic Exile.
 However much one may deplore the lapse of constitutional government in Italy, it is not infrequently necessary to give more than a grudging approval to certain of her dictator's acts and policies. One doesn't have to be an advocate of dictatorship to admire for a moment the elemental justice in his commitment of a bus chauffeur to a barren Mediterranean island for the "bestial criminality" of reckless driving.

There are few crimes for which banishment to a desert isle would be more fitting. Doubtless attorneys for Celso Cattani could and did offer extenuations in his behalf, but he was found guilty of continually imperiling his passengers' lives by indulging in mad races with touring cars. The next two years he will pass in a place where there are no busses, no touring cars and no roads.

Many the motorist who would languish on the Hen and Chickens if Mussolini's scheme for safeguarding the highways could be written into the traffic code of the state of Ohio—it takes an autocrat to make the punishment fit the crime. But at this distance we can see merits in it. Such fitting justice must be administered with a great amount of personal satisfaction to the author of it.

When enemies plot and guns pop, a dictator's heart may be saddened at the ingratitude with which his efforts are received. It is a thankless job at best. But it has its little compensations.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Once Overs
 By J. J. Mundy.
 Revenge is Not So Sweet.

You may be looking for an opportunity for revenge.
 But are you sure that the person who has incurred your ill-will is actually guilty of what you think he has done?

Circumstantial evidence you have, but possibly you are mistaken.
 Most of us cause ourselves a great deal of unhappiness because of what our imagination pictures to us.

In certain mental conditions it is easy to believe that others are antagonistic toward us.
 And the longer we harbor such thoughts the stronger their hold upon us and the more we become convinced that we are correct in these deductions.

Undoubtedly you have had the experience of accusing a person of a certain thing only to find that he or she was guiltless.

Perhaps the thing that is worrying you today and for which you so long for revenge is not founded on facts at all.

But suppose you did "get even" would it be a real gratification?
 You would have lowered yourself and your shame could not enjoy the revenge you contemplate for something as yet unproven.

Revenge reacts against you.
 Those English sleeper-busses—a compliment to English roads—Dela-ware Gazette.

Never a Marcel Wave.

By Edna Wallace Hopper
On the stage, in public and at private functions my hair always attracts. During my performances women never fail to ask the secret of my perfect wave and the youthful, lively sheen of my hair.

It is very simple. I wave my own hair—dress, Wave and Sheen. I use a hair-dress, Wave and Sheen. I use a comb to apply it. Then I carefully insert the combs. I tie a piece of chiffon over my head. By the time I am ready to complete my toilette the waves are in to stay.

A radiant sheen, free from stickiness, is the chief charm of this simple method. Wave and Sheen is the only dressing I would use on my hair. It is the only preparation I know that does not give the "plastered" effect, which I cannot tolerate. The hair, must have some air in order to be healthy and free from dandruff.

HOOVER DRAFTS PLANS FOR HIS SOUTHERN TRIP

Republican Nominee Happy Over New Jersey Visit.

SEES VICTORY

Reaffirms G. O. P. Program for Organized Labor.

BY WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—While his party leaders predicted he had captured New Jersey's electoral vote on his two-day visit along the Atlantic seaboard, Herbert Hoover was back at his headquarters today launching preparations for his next great campaign drive—an invasion of the solid south next month.

The Republican nominee was well pleased at the greeting accorded him by New Jersey and at the friendly reception given his labor speech. On his tour, he extended his public utterances by reaffirming the Republican program for organized labor, featuring a pledge to provide a job for every man willing to work, by pleading for the election of a Republican congress, by declaring against the infection of personalities into the campaign and by delivering an eulogy of President Coolidge.

Opposes Personalities.

In asking for the election of a Republican congress, Hoover declared "no national administration can succeed with only one branch of the political machinery in its control." He asked for the election of a Republican house and senate so Republican policies could be enacted into law.

The nominee confirmed a recent announcement that he opposed the injection of personalities into the campaign. He specifically urged voters to cast their ballots according to the judgment they formed in the records, policies and issues of the two contending parties.

Praises President.

"Our campaign is based on the presentation of the record of the party and its policies for the future," Hoover said. "It is not and should not be a campaign of personalities."

"I am convinced that the good sense of the American people will make them form their judgment on the record, the policies and the issues and not upon personalities. This is as it should be."

In praising President Coolidge, Hoover followed the theme of his acceptance speech, in which he declared the president had "raised economy and effectiveness in government to the rank of statesmanship." He praised Coolidge's "fine leadership, fine character, fine sense of duty and courage."

KIDNAPED BOY RETURNS HOME

Billy Ranieri, 10, Freed by Chicago Extortionists.

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—Billy Ranieri, 10-year-old kidnaped Italian boy, who for 13 days was held hostage by a band of Sicilian extortionists, under death threats, for a ransom of $60,000, was today restored unharmed to the arms of his frenzied parents.

At an early hour this morning Billy was discovered by George Mats, gasoline station attendant, while trudging along a deserted highway near Lockport, five miles north of Joliet, Ill.

Billy was taken to Lockport in a machine by four men. On the dark road outside of the village they halted the car and one of the men put a $10 bill in the boy's hand.

The lad walked until he saw the lights of an automobile service station. He went in and asked Mats to take him home, offering him the $10. Calling the sheriff they took Billy to the Will county jail.

After identification the sheriff called Frank Ranieri, father of the boy, on the telephone and told him that his son was safe. Upon receipt of this information the father collapsed.

PAUL JAWARSKI IS NEAR DEATH

CLEVELAND, Sept. 19.—Though physicians said they expected death momentarily, Paul Jawarski, jail breaker and murderer, was still alive in City hospital here today.

Jawarski was wounded and captured last Thursday after a gun battle in which he killed one policeman and wounded two other men. Thirteen months ago he shot his way out of the county jail at Pittsburgh, where he was under conviction for first degree murder.

YOUNG, WALSH BAY STATE FOES

BOSTON, Sept. 19.—Benjamin Loring Young, prominent Republican, former speaker of the Massachusetts house of representatives and Hoover delegate to the national Republican convention, will oppose United States Senator David I. Walsh, one of the best known and one of the most popular Democrats of the Bay state, in the November election. They were nominated in yesterday's primaries.

Louisiana Man Kills Himself.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 19.—Killing himself by shooting, the body of Charles H. Baker, 32, son of H. L. Baker, Lake Charles, Louisiana, business man, was found in his room here today. He left a note saying that he considered himself a failure.

TODAY

The sugar crop of Porto Rico is safe. THAT interests us, sugar might go up. Coffee growers suffer heavy losses. That interests us, it may mean dearer coffee.

JUDGE JAROCKI, of Chicago, says that city will enlist 10,000 men to guard the polls in November. He doesn't want any more "pineapple politics."

"Pineapple," you know, is Chicago's playful euphemism for an explosive bomb.

If pineapples only were used in the Chicago campaign it wouldn't be so bad. But automatics, machine guns and brass knuckles added to the pineapples make the way of the voter hard, unless he votes with the gang.

HUNDREDS of thousands are homeless in Porto Rico, crops are ruined, many in extreme misery and actually hungry.

Uncle Sam should prove that his friendship and protection are real and worth having. There should be no waiting for the Red Cross to make some little gesture.

This is a rich country, with money, ships and provisions, and no time should be lost.

THE United States constitution is 141 years old now, and that fact was appropriately celebrated Monday on the steps of the United States sub-treasury in Wall street. The constitution has provided 141 years of prosperity, and Wall street is prosperity's main office.

It was a cheerful Wall street birthday for those whose enough not to sell short. General Motors went to the highest price ever.

Big Steel sold above 160. "Call money" lent at 6 1/2, only half a point inside the usury line.

Small blessings thankfully received.

C. W. HOYT, an able man, brilliant in his profession, is killed by a fall from his horse. The horse shied, causing a sudden fall, and Mr. Hoyt's neck was broken.

Many friends will sympathize with the family of Mr. Hoyt, whose death should be a warning to all men that ride, especially after 50.

Had Mr. Hoyt worn a hat of extra hard felt, especially made for riding and providing an air cushion to protect head and neck in case of a fall, he would doubtless be alive now.

THREE NABBED IN RUM RAID

Police Visit John Stacey Home in Walnut Street.

Three persons, two men and a woman, will face Municipal Judge J. C. Hanley upon liquor charges tomorrow morning, as the result of a raid at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Stacey, lower Walnut street, by Chief of Police McDermott, Patrolman Lister and Probation Officer John McShane this morning.

Police found nothing but empty bottles, but Stacey and his wife were brought to city hall for questioning. Police said they admitted possession and also implicated Ralph Wynn, who they said, had delivered liquor to their home last night.

Police returned to the house for a second search, and seized liquors in a sewing machine. Wynn was found in the house and brought to the city jail where a charge of transporting liquor was filed against him. Stacey was charged with possessing and Mrs. Stacey with selling.

Stacey and Wynn were held in jail but the woman was released on her own recognizance.

400 Dead in Florida

bor was lined with ships which rushed from the sea for protection.

Communication with the outside world was possible only through a devious route. Calls between here and Washington were routed via Philadelphia and thence south through the Delaware, Maryland and Virginia peninsula. The regular telephone circuit through Richmond was cut between Richmond and Norfolk.

Highways Are Blocked.

RALEIGH, N. C., Sept. 19.—Portions of North and South Carolina were isolated today as result of the lashing by the Florida hurricane which swept along the coast northward to Virginia and the sea.

Torrential rains accompanied the storm and many rivers reached flood stage.

Highways were blocked, roofs and small buildings were blown away, and considerable damage was feared to the cotton and other crops. There was no loss of life.

Goldsboro, Tarboro, Wilson, Fayetteville, and Rocky Mount, N. C., and Suffolk, Va., bore the brunt of the storm as it passed this section.

Trains 24 Hours Late.

ATLANTA, Sept. 19.—Florida's hurricane toll, growing hourly as reports come in, will reach approximately 200 dead, hundreds injured and between $75,000,000 and $100,000,000 property damage, according to first eye witnesses who reached Atlanta today.

500 Dead in Guadeloupe.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—First official dispatches from the French island of Guadeloupe since last week's hurricane struck the West Indies reached the state department today and revealed widespread suffering and desolation. In Point Pitre and vicinity total 500, American Consul William H. Hunt reported.

Infirmary Superintendent Dies.

NEW LEXINGTON, O., Sept. 19.—Funeral arrangements were being made here today for John McDougal, 20 years superintendent of the Perry county infirmary who died there yesterday.

GOV. AL SMITH IN FIGHTING ROLE AT OMAHA

Nominee Trains Guns on Hoover Record on Farm Relief.

PLEDGES AID

Democrat Endorses Control of Exportable Crop Surpluses.

By George R. Holmes.

OMAHA, Nebraska, Sept. 19.—Governor Al Smith was back today in his familiar role of a slashing, fighting, aggressive campaigner.

After his first big speech in which he was satirical and sarcastic over the Coolidge-Hoover record on farm relief, the Democratic nominee turned southward toward Oklahoma to continue carrying war into the corn and wheat country.

Governor Smith fed the fires of Republican discord in the grain belt by his Omaha speech last night. And at the same time he went a long way toward meeting the demands of the western farm organizations that for two years have solidly backed and bitterly fought for the McNary-Haugen bill.

Without mentioning the famous equalization fee by name, Gov. Smith did endorse the fundamental principle of it. And that was what the farm leaders wanted to hear.

Outline His Position.

Eight thousand people, all that could be squeezed into Omaha's auditorium, came to their feet with a roar of approval when the governor boldly flung a challenge to Secretary Hoover to politically go to the mat with him on the issue in the middle-west.

As for his own position, he outlined it thus:

"Various people have attempted to misrepresent and confuse my attitude with respect to the McNary-Haugen bill. I do not propose to leave the slightest doubt in anybody's mind on the subject."

"As I read the McNary-Haugen bill, its fundamental purpose is to establish an effective control of the sale of exportable surplus with the cost imposed upon the commodity benefited. For that principle the Democratic platform squarely stands, and for that principle I squarely stand."

"Mr. Hoover stands squarely opposite to this principle by which the farmer could get the benefit of the tariff. What remains of the McNary-Haugen bill is a mere matter of method."

Assails Coolidge Policy.

Calling both Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Hoover by name, he accused the president, in effect, of "gold-bricking" the farmer throughout his administration, and declared that Mr. Hoover proposed to continue that policy.

Agriculture, he said, was sick in 1924 and the Republicans "solely promised to put agriculture on a basis of economic equality with industry."

He read from the Republican platform of 1924, and then read the identical phrase in the platform of 1928.

"In other words," he said, "having promised it four years ago and having failed to deliver, the only thing left to do was to promise it again."

Not only have Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Hoover failed to bring forth an adequate program to meet this problem, he declared, but "they have opposed every comprehensive measure for farm relief proposed by others."

Reads President's Message.

In his best satirical vein, Governor Smith read that portion of President Coolidge's message to congress in which he said that the administration had "constant solicitude and sympathy" for the farm belt.

"All I got was sympathy," said the governor, paraphrasing the old song. "They have been fooling the farmer. They have not been on the level with him. They have not been four-square. They have not told him the truth."

The disposal of crop surpluses, Governor Smith said, is the whole nubbin of the farm relief program, or, as he expressed it, "the nigger in the woodpile."

"And what has Candidate Hoover said concerning this?" the governor asked. "In 1924 he said surpluses could only be corrected by having prices low enough to make production unprofitable. I have a reasonably fair understanding of the English language for a man who did not get much time to read it out of books. This is what it means: Beat the prices down so low and starve out so many farmers that those who are strong enough to last probably will get something."

Expresses Self on Prohibition.

The governor did not leave Omaha without expressing himself on prohibition. It was voluntary on his part. "Do you believe the country will be more prosperous with liquor, or without?"

"Nobody could answer that question," said the governor, "for there never has been liquor out of this country."

The third question was: Do you believe that liquor is the great issue in this campaign?

"Certainly not," he said.

The fourth question was: How can you square your support of Democratic candidates for congress pledged against liquor with what you say you will do for liquor?

"All that a president can do," he replied, "is to recommend to congress, and he can assume the leadership of the American people in an effort to show them his recommendation is right. That is what I propose to do."

"The Democratic convention left every Democrat in the United States free to express his own individual opinion of what he thought on the subject."

Hubert Work's Reply.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Gov. Al Smith's farm speech in Omaha drew a reply today from Hubert Work, chairman of the Republican national committee.

"Gov. Smith's speech last night is to a considerable degree based upon

TAIL OF STORM HITS CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—The national capital caught the tail end of the Florida hurricane today. A cold rain was whipped and blown by a brisk wind, which, however, caused only slight damage to property.

Weather bureau officials declared the entire eastern coast from Virginia northward would have high winds, reaching gale force at some points.

Storm warnings were posted to Boston and shipping was cautioned.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—The effects of Tuesday's closing reaction were seen in the piling up of overnight selling orders, and price trends were slightly lower in the first hour of trading today. Losses of a point or two were sustained by General Motors, U. S. Steel and other speculative favorites in the steel, motor, tobacco and other groups. On the other hand the oils and specialties were strong from the start, Curries Aero again leading a spirited rise in the airplane stocks.

A decline in call loan rates to 7 per cent, coincident with the influx of a good volume of new speculative money into Wall Street encouraged the bulls. New advances were promptly inaugurated by the copper, zinc and metals' stocks, the motors and specialties. St. Joseph Lead, American Zinc, Cerro De Pasco Copper and other stocks in that group were in good form; General Motors won back all of its lost ground in a start, Curries Aero again leading a spirited move in Yellow Truck was resumed.

The market showed traces of the high tension under which it has been operating in recent weeks. Commission houses forecasted a temporary or corrective reaction, in order to straighten out some of the abnormalities in the speculative list. Pools in a few of the cheap stocks like Kelvintator, Loft, Armour and Continental Motors marked up their favorites in vigorous style and a good share of the trading was consumed by the turnover in these shares.

misquotations or distortions of quotations from President Coolidge, secretary Hoover and the Republican platform," said Work.

"Gov. Smith displays remarkable ignorance of some fundamental facts. Candidate Smith carefully avoids stating that he is for the equalization fee, although he says he has a four-square plan platform."

CHARGES FRAUD IN JUDGES' VOTE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Col. C. C. McGovern, of Pittsburgh, Allegheny county commission, testified in the Vane-Wilson senatorial contest hearing before Senator Waterman (R.) of Colorado, today, that "some" of the nine judges chosen there in 1927 were fraudulently elected.

"That was a crooked election," he charged. "Some of the judges who are on the bench shouldn't be there. They are beneficiaries knowingly or not, of crookedness."

SOCIETY

Jack Dempsey Predicts Gene Tunney Will Return To Ring

Former Champ Believes Conqueror Will Quit Tour Of Europe to Don Gloves

Boy Friend Tells Davis Walsh Jack Sharkey Will Not be Next Heavyweight Title Holder—Neither Will Tommy Loughran.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Jack Sharkey will not be the next heavyweight champion of the world. Neither will Tommy Loughran nor George Godfrey nor yet Paulino, Risko and Tom Heeney. He will be a fellow by the name of Gene Tunney and the reason I know so much about it is that good, old John Dempsey, the boy friend, broke down pitifully and confessed all today.

It was John's way of saying that he didn't believe Brother Tunney meant to go in permanently for companionate pedestrianism, daily discussions about the absolute privacy due a public character and other simple pleasures of his current tour of European side streets, cleverly disguised as a private citizen. Brother Tunney affirms that he has permanently withdrawn himself from circulation. The world, gallantly rallying from the great calamity, is willing to believe him. Dempsey isn't.

"Just a hunch," he explained when I wanted to know his reasons, if any. "Just a hunch," he explained when I wanted to know his reasons, if any. Tunney will be back in there fighting again and, of course, he will fight as the defending champion. It wouldn't surprise me at all if he came back before the end of the next outdoor season.

John Explains. "There are only two reasons why a fighter stops fighting. If he knows he isn't, he doesn't. Well, Tunney right now is at the top of his form. The other reason is money. If a fighter doesn't think he is going to get what he wants, he walks out on the show and waits for a better break. Tunney is worth more as an attraction now than if he hadn't retired."

John seems, also, to disagree with the popular notion that, if they don't get the great man back in there within a year, they never will. Those who feel this way about it argue that Tunney, well aware of the disquieting effect a lay-off has on speed, timing and other essentials, never would come back to receive an exterior decorating. He could have no assurance to the contrary, it is contended, if he stayed out longer than a year.

"Eye wash," said John, in his best drawing room manner. "If he took any care of himself, he might be able to stay out three or four years and still lick the best of the lot we have around now. Don't ask me who I think is the best. I don't know and neither does anybody else. All we know about them is that they are nothing much."

How About Dempsey?
"How about yourself, if these eggs are so terrible?" the writer wished to know.

"That's different. I fought two or three fights too many. Tunney hasn't. Being a perfect gentleman in spite of my boxing gloves, I refrained from asking whether John's doubt about Brother Tunney's future activities had anything to do with his own declarations for a life of ease and refinement. They do say, you know, that John retired last winter because Tunney didn't."

CALL BOWLING LEAGUE MEETING

A bowling league will be launched at a meeting which will be held in the Liberty alleys at 7:30 o'clock Thursday night.
The following team managers have been asked to attend: Canne, Green, Manypenny, Wurzel, H. Schneidmiller, Creed Morris and Deitz.

Fight Results

AT NEW YORK: Tommy Grogan, Omaha lightweight, scored technical knockout over Al Bryant, of Newark, N. J. (9).

Jack McVey, New York Negro middleweight, outpointed Johnny Haystack, Binghamton, N. Y. (10).

AT WILMINGTON, Del.: Joey Scalafaro, New York, stopped Jimmy Ireland, Wilmington (7).

AT CLEVELAND: George Courtney, Oklahoma Cowboy, defeated Ernie Owens, California light heavyweight, (10).

Gorilla Jones, Akron Negro welterweight, defeated Bobby Lasalle, of California (8).

Carl Tremaine, Cleveland, decisioned Billy Herrold, local lightweight (6).

Bill Bailey, Cleveland, knocked out Roy Archer, Pittsburgh, (2).

Bobby's Smile of Victory

Just to prove he hasn't gone back any, Bobby Jones, the great Atlantan, decisively proved his right to national amateur golf title by defeating T. P. Perkins, British amateur champ, 10 up and 9 to play over the Brae Burn course at West Newton, Mass. Left, Bobby playing out of a bunker on the way to third hole.

Grid Team Ready For Canton Hi

Hurstmen Will Face McKinley Eleven Saturday.

Coach Joseph Hurst's blue and white gridgers will pry off the lid of the 1928 season at Lakeside stadium, Canton, Saturday afternoon, when they will meet the strong McKinley high eleven.

Five or six of the local squad who have been nursing injuries during the last few days, are expected to be in condition for the Saturday's battle. The injured list includes Fullback Carl Clark, who has been unable to take part in practice sessions for about a week because of a sprained left ankle.

In the event that Clark is unable to play, Hurst will use Chetwyn or Peters, substitute backs, at the full back place. Mackall and Mills will be the half backs, while Skidmore will be at center.

Twelve to Make Trip.
The line will include Felt, left end; Woolley, left tackle; McCoy, left guard; Witherow, right end; Dalrymple, right tackle, and Dickey or Waters, at right guard. Althar will be at center. About 25 players will make the pilgrimage to Canton.

One of Hurst's biggest jobs in developing a team this year is the reorganization of practically a new line. Only four of last year's letter men are members of the squad this year although about 15 of last year's team will help fill the regular positions on the 1928 eleven. Clark, Witherow, Skidmore and Mackall were letter men during the 1927 grid season.

The squad will average about 158 pounds. The McKinley high school eleven is much heavier, the line averaging about 190 pounds.

This is the first year that East Liverpool has been on the McKinley schedule.

Open Home Season Sept. 29.
The locals were put through scrimmage practice at Patterson field last night, and Hurst was well pleased with the workout. Other scrimmages will be held tonight and Thursday night. The Friday night workout will be devoted to a signal drill.

The high team will leave here at 9:30 o'clock Saturday morning, two motor busses having been chartered for the trip.

The opening game on the home field will be played Saturday, September 29, when the locals will meet the Holy Name High school team of Cleveland.

McGraw Ready for Cubs, Card

Giants Must Whip McKechnie Clan to Grab Flag.

By Les Conklin.
NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—"Crisis imminent, patient doing as well as can be expected."

That was Dr. John McGraw's diagnosis of the condition of the New York Giants today as his youthful stars squared off for hand-to-hand fights with their two pennant rivals, the Chicago Cubs and the St. Louis Cardinals. The New Yorkers take on the Cubs today, while the Cardinals are idle, tackle St. Louis twice tomorrow and play the league leaders again on Saturday. And the chances are that their hash will be cooked unless they grab three of the four games.

All three of the leaders won again yesterday, New York remaining two games behind St. Louis and a game and a half in front of Chicago. The Cubs' only chance is to trim the Giants today and then root for the New Yorkers to clean up the Cards.

Yanks and A's Rest.
Meanwhile the rostering, swaggering, staggering Yankees are enjoying an imposing two-game lead of the Athletics in the American league scramble. Hits by Cleveland rookies—a double by Harvel and Tucker's homer—beat Rube Walberg and the Mackmen yesterday, 3 to 2, although the Indians got only five hits in all. The Yanks resumed their slugging

DeLaney and Tassi Await Bell

Jack and Juvenile Clash at Ebbets Field.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Opening the fall and winter season in his old, easy fitting light heavyweight role, Jack DeLaney will bring his majestic stride to the ring at Ebbets field tonight with a steel-fisted juvenile, Nando Tassi, in the opposite corner.

This is DeLaney's first bid for his old title since he was cured of his heavyweight ambition by Jack Sharkey last spring.

Tassi may not be the most formidable opponent DeLaney could dig up at this time but he is a foreign menace not to be lightly regarded, for he is a dynamite who wrecks exposed chins quickly. DeLaney is a pretty cagey bird and isn't likely to give the young Italian many openings. Jack is taller, heavier and probably will blanket his youthful opponent with experience.

ways and connected for 18 hits by winning a 14 to 11 nightmare from the Browns. New York's big four—Heilmann, Johnson, Piggas and Hoyt—were nipped for 14 bingles. They will get a much-needed rest today, both the Yanks and the A's having an off-day.

Jess Haines turned in his seventh straight win as the Cardinals trimmed the Phillies again, 4 to 2, making it 20 wins in 22 starts against the Quakers this season.

Terry's Homer Wins.
Billy Terry's homer in the tenth staked the Giants to a 3 to 2 victory over Pittsburgh. The Giants were deprived of the satisfaction of defeating Durlough Grimes, their pet jinx, as he was removed for a pinch hitter in the ninth when the Pirates tied the score.

The Cubs massacred the Braves again, 8 to 3. Rogers Hornsby got two hits and regained the league batting lead from Paul Waner.

Phil Page, rookie southpaw obtained by Detroit from Springfield, Mass., pitched the Tigers to an 8 to 5 win over Washington in his first start in the big show.

Cincinnati captured the season's series from Brooklyn, 12 games to 10, by handing the Dodgers a 5 to 2 defeat in the final game.

AT CAMDEN, N. J.: Vincent Forgeone, Philadelphia, outpointed Babe Gregory, Oklahoma middleweight (8).

It Never Pays

Romance in New York

By GILBERT ROGERS

Sally was moved to sudden new sympathy. She understood, oh she understood now. She could imagine following Jerry Evesham anywhere, doing anything just to see him, having no life of her own, caring for him, never caring for anyone or anything else. Why, if Jerry were bad to her, she's still go on loving him. She knew that now. And Mrs. Brooke did not seem weak to her any longer. She couldn't help loving Dan Shevlin. That was her misery—and her happiness.

"Darling, your eyes are shining. Why you're growing simply stunning! Will you explain to me why I'm not so hideous jealous of you that I hate you like poison?" Carlotta Brooke's arm slipped affectionately around Sally's shoulder. "And now do hurry! I'll go away so as not to bother you. Dan may be here at any moment, and he does loathe being kept waiting when he's hungry."

Sally had turned on the hot water tap, ferreted out a powder puff, and scamped into the first dress that her hand fell on. But when she came flying downstairs again, Dan Shevlin hadn't arrived, and at last Mrs. Brooke reluctantly gave up waiting.

"I suppose we'd better begin without him. There's no telling . . . You don't suppose something has happened to him?"

The candlelight flooded the long table with a soft radiance, making more beautiful still the old silver service, the Spode china, the lace and crystal and the bowl of drooping roses. But Mrs. Brooke was silent now, and Sally was glad. She wanted to think. She wanted to remember how he had looked and what he had said. She touched her waist gently. His arm had held her there . . . she found herself lost in a kind of trance.

Life looked serious now, full of serious problems, stretching in a vast blackness before her, but it was life. It wasn't make-believe any longer. And she was going to hear from Jerry at ten tomorrow morning. How many hours was that to wait?

How good looking he was. She thought of Ruth Irving with her glasses and Ruth Irving's tall, taciturn, bald-headed beau, back in New York. Was it possible that Ruth Irving shared with her this unbelievable feeling of sheer goodness and joy, this glowing thing that made her heart warm? It did not really seem possible, and yet perhaps she wasn't the only person in the world who had ever loved. Only no one had ever loved quite so much . . .

"Lord, we're cheerful! I need a cigarette. As soon as no man is present, two women can be dull as dull."

"Oh, I'm not feeling dull. I'm just . . . thinking."

"About what, Sally?"

"About being poor. Do you know, I don't think I should mind if I were poor—always poor—I mean if I liked someone a lot."

"That's the sort of thing you can believe in a Paquin gown after a Sherry luncheon as you step into your imported town-car. The reality—ugh!"

"Oh, I know . . . but it might even be fun sometimes," Sally protested wistfully. "You know you could be happy somewhere, in the country maybe, or even in a couple of tiny rooms in the city. I think it—if you were in love with a man, it would make you love him all the more, sharing things with him like that, hardships, I mean, and showing him you didn't mind."

Mrs. Brooke sighed. "Don't! You make me feel like a hundred. To think I once would have agreed with you. But it's so far back, it only makes me realize how old I am."

"I wouldn't be surprised if you agreed with me now." A half wistful smile touched the corners of Mrs. Brooke's mouth for one fading moment. "I shouldn't be surprised," she echoed. But her eyes went to the window again. "You don't really suppose something has happened to Dan?"

"Oh, of course not. Why should it?"

"He's such a reckless driver. Crazy, when he gets behind a wheel."

"He's probably just detained."

"What could detain him? Oh, just some woman or other—somebody, I suppose that's it, don't you?"

She asked the question in a conversational manner, but Sally noticed that her hand was trembling.

"Of course not!" she asserted loyally. "That's the last thing—you're just saying that—"

The sound of a car on the drive under the trees came sharply, suddenly close. There was a moment's delay, then faintly the peal of the doorbell. Mrs. Brooke bit her lip, as Dan Shevlin walked in.

"Thought you weren't coming," she half drawled. "Oh, dear, I'm so tired." She looked bored, but as her eyes scrutinized Shevlin's face, her pretense failed wretchedly. And Shevlin's grin seemed to proclaim that he, too, saw through it.

"I'm starving," he announced. "Mind if I sit down—like this? He sat down as he spoke, and turned his hard gaze on Sally. "How's the hothouse beauty—artificially raised—transplanted and all that? Incidentally, I've picked the wealthy husband for you, little one. He's due up here next week—wonder why I hadn't thought of him before. Tubby Wells?—why he can hire Tubby Wells as a valet if he wants. Ever hear of Adrian Martin?"

But Sally was staring at him, with a sick feeling of dismay welling up in her. She had forgotten why she was here? She had forgotten her promise, her bargain. For the first time it dawned on her that having come to the social colony for the avowed purpose of marrying a millionaire, she had promptly fallen in love with a paper.

She looked at Dan Shevlin, a little white of face. She'd have to tell him somehow, beg him to let off, promise to pay back some future day for her precious fling. But—was it going to be so easy? Sally felt a sense of something like utter foreboding.

CHAPTER 16.

Dan Shevlin staring at her with his luminous eyes across that table of crystal and flowers . . . and Mrs. Brooke, interested, frowning a little.

Sally's heart felt sick. She would have to tell them, she would have to tell Shevlin that she couldn't go through with her bargain.

This Adrian Martin, all the other Adrian Martins, didn't matter now. Life began and ended only with Jerry Evesham.

"Am I crazy?" she half whispered to herself. "I ought to know better. You don't just fall in love with one man—you fall in love with lots of men, and out again!" Put what chance had reasoning, observation, knowledge, against the surety of this emotion that possessed her now—this feeling that if Jerry Evesham should die, she would die, too?

Just a young man—without a nickel—but with friendly, frank eyes, a straight way of looking at you, talking to you, the kind of man who took care of you—how could she help loving him. And if he had been none of those things, how could she help loving him anyway?

What a fool she really had been. Just a thorough-going idiot, thinking she could be an adventuress, thinking she could coolly pick out the wealthiest man available—and marry him. Adrian—r Tubby Wells—why, she thought itself was sickening.

Only, how was she going to tell Dan Shevlin. How was she going to say, "I don't want to go on. I want you to call our agreement off. I want to pay you back—every penny—later on."

Shevlin fingered the stem of his wine glass, as he glanced about with his hard, alert eyes that missed nothing, a stream of sharp, stinging banter pouring from him. And Sally knew it was not going to be easy.

But that wasn't what worried her really. It was Jerry. Jerry himself. He loved her a little, she thought with an intake of breath. A little—and she could do a lot with a little love. She had to make him care, had to, had to. Else why live at all. Anyway, no matter what might happen, she must get free from Shevlin's schemes. She must get free now, right away.

Coffee—served in little filigree cups of silver—in the drawing room, and Mrs. Brooke desperately anxious to get rid of her.

"I ought to go. I ought to go upstairs and read," Sally told herself. "I ought to lie down with a book and—f—uk about Jerry. But—act quickly. Get things done. Don't wait or hesitate. Get things done now."

"Am I crazy?" she half whispered to herself. "I ought to know better. You don't just fall in love with one man—you fall in love with lots of men, and out again!" Put what chance had reasoning, observation, knowledge, against the surety of this emotion that possessed her now—this feeling that if Jerry Evesham should die, she would die, too?

Just a young man—without a nickel—but with friendly, frank eyes, a straight way of looking at you, talking to you, the kind of man who took care of you—how could she help loving him. And if he had been none of those things, how could she help loving him anyway?

What a fool she really had been. Just a thorough-going idiot, thinking she could be an adventuress, thinking she could coolly pick out the wealthiest man available—and marry him. Adrian—or Tubby Wells—why, she thought itself was sickening.

Only, how was she going to tell Dan Shevlin. How was she going to say, "I don't want to go on. I want you to call our agreement off. I want to pay you back—every penny—later on."

Shevlin fingered the stem of his wine glass, as he glanced about with his hard, alert eyes that missed nothing, a stream of sharp, stinging banter pouring from him. And Sally knew it was not going to be easy.

But that wasn't what worried her really. It was Jerry. Jerry himself. He loved her a little, she thought with an intake of breath. A little—and she could do a lot with a little love. She had to make him care, had to, had to. Else why live at all. Anyway, no matter what might happen, she must get free from Shevlin's schemes. She must get free now, right away.

Coffee—served in little filigree cups of silver—in the drawing room, and Mrs. Brooke desperately anxious to get rid of her.

"I ought to go. I ought to go upstairs and read," Sally told herself. "I ought to lie down with a book—and—think about Jerry. But—act quickly. Get things done. Don't wait or hesitate. Get things done now"

With nothing in your gas tank but BLUE SUNOCO, advance your spark to the limit and push your accelerator to the floor.

Now brake your car down to the speed at which knocking occurs.

Try this with any other gasoline and see how much more quickly it knocks.

Then try going through traffic in high, and notice how flexible BLUE SUNOCO is compared with all others.

Notice, too, the hills you can conquer on high, and then see how far short other gasolines fall in getting over the same hills.

Notice your miles per dollar cost with BLUE SUNOCO. You'll find no fuel which is so economical.
